Myself and my partner have lived in Loddington village for approximately 4 years and one of the main reasons for moving out of a town to a village was for the green spaces. If the above two areas are removed as green spaces then this could open up the opportunity for a housing development, which would completely ruin the feel of the village. I do not see the necessity to remove these areas as green spaces.

The council have failed to take action in regards to the traveller encampment towards the cransley side of the village. So if these spaces are also removed Loddington in my opinion the whole character of the village will be disappearing.

There is no local need for more houses within the immediate area due to the large developments in moulton which is moving up towards Holcot which is less than 5 minutes away.

I wholeheartedly object to these proposals.
