I am distressed to learn that Kettering Borough Council's intention to protect the green space that runs through the centre of Braybrooke has been overturned by the Government Planning Inspectorate. I attended a Parish Meeting a few years ago where several contiguous tranches of land were put forward as meriting protection from development in perpetuity; I felt recognising their collective outstanding contribution to the character of the village. Braybrooke seems very unusual to have a green heart, with its dwellings set back on all sides, and this special land runs as a continuous belt of biodiversity the full width of the village linking countryside to countryside via the middle of the community. And some of this land merits the additional mention as being used (most picturesquely) to host the village fete. Long may that be able to continue.
