The green spaces comprising pastureland, paddocks and gardens which run through and around Braybrooke ensure a harmonious balance is maintained in this busy and heavily populated village.

These green spaces should never be seen as sacrificial, they are as essential to the village as the roads and services and help maintain the mental and physical wellbeing of those living in the village.

Removing their protection with all the risks that this brings fails to understand the special nature that our green spaces provide within our community, this includes: Thriving wildlife

Biodiversity

Creation of Privacy

Peace

Beauty

History

Wellbeing

In short, the green spaces in our village are as important to us today as they have been for hundreds of years. Allowing them to be stripped out in favour of a few expensive new homes does nothing to help the shortage of housing and will only result in an irretrievable loss for all the residents of the village today and in the future.

I would simply ask this, does putting at risk our fragile green spaces feel right, does this feel like progress towards a better way of life. I say no and urge those that plan and oversee the area where we live to recognise their importance and ensure their protection.
